FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Hudson Music announces release of new Gavin Harrison Porcupine Tree book.

New York, NY (March 5, 2014) – Hudson Music has announced the release of a new drum book from international drumming star Gavin Harrison. Rhythmic Composition documents Gavin's work with the popular progressive rock band Porcupine Tree. Released under the Hudson Ltd. label, the book includes 20 highly detailed drum transcriptions by Terry Branam and in-depth commentary from Gavin taking you through the concepts of each song. Included are some of Gavin's most legendary drum parts, including "Blackest Eyes," "Trains," "The Sound of Muzak," "Futile," "Halo," "Anesthetize," "Nil Recurring," "Cheating the Polygraph," and others.

"As the distributors of Gavin's other drumming products, we are thrilled to be able to release this new book, which fans have been requesting for years," said Hudson Senior Drum Editor Joe Bergamini. "Drummers all over the world have marveled at Gavin's incredibly complex yet grooving and tasteful playing in Porcupine Tree, and now we have this wonderful book with Terry Branam's transcriptions and Gavin's commentary to assist us in studying and learning these fantastic and creative parts." The 128-page book is available for $19.99.

Gavin's other products available through Hudson Ltd. include his book/DVD package Rhythmic Designs, and two DVDs: Rhythmic Horizons and Rhythmic Visions.
